

EATING & DRINKING
Things to do in London this week: 7 – 13 December 2020

INSPIRATION
The best London staycations right now

PLACES TO STAY
First in at The Mayfair Townhouse: 2020's most-talked-about London opening

EATING & DRINKING
The most beautiful restaurants in London

INSPIRATION
Why sl...
Faulks

For more ideas, see our general guide to the best things to do in London year-round – although please do check what is open before visiting

by OLIVIA MORELLI
Monday 7 December 2020

London is out of lockdown and in Tier 2 – and we're rounding up the best things to do in the capital this week, including new restaurants to book, outdoor exhibitions to visit and Christmas cocktails to order.

What to do in London this week

1. WRAP UP AND GO ON AN OUTDOOR ART WALK

Walking has been the activity du jour for most of 2020, and the outdoor scene has got increasingly inventive. Take CIRCA, a new site for digital art in the centre of London, for example. Each evening at precisely 20:20, the giant billboard in Piccadilly Circus will show a specially commissioned work by artists from Ai Weiwei to Eddie Peake. Meanwhile, in Mayfair, JOY Bomb is a pop-up art installation on Brook Street, offering shoppers a multisensory escape with blueberry-hued, bubble-gum pink, lilac fur-lined interiors and other candy-coloured fun, with live actors providing an immersive (but socially distanced) experience.